The Angels Want to Wear My  Red Shoes  by ELVIS COSTELLO

E  B  E  B  E
E                                        Abm
Oh I used to be disgusted, and now I try to be amused.
*                E7*
But since their wings have got rusted,
*                A              B              E*
you know, the angels wanna wear my red shoes.
*                A                                  E*
But when they told me 'bout their side of the bargain,
*              A                        E*
that's when I knew that I could not refuse.
*              B                              A              B              A      E*
And I won't get any older, now the angels wanna wear my red shoes.
*      A                                  B        E*
Oh,   I was watching while you're dancing away.
B                                  A          E
Our love got fractured in the echo and sway.
A                                  B        E
How come everybody wants to be your friend?
*      Abm                                  B*
You know that it still hurts me just to say it.
*       E*
Oh, I know that she's disgusted (oh why's that)
*             Abm*
Cause she's feeling so abused. (oh that's too bad)
*          A*
She gets tired of the lust, (oh I'm so sad)
*           B*
but it's so hard to refuse.

```
How can you say that I'm too old,
          E             B              A       E
when the angels have stolen my red shoes.
     A                       B       E
Oh, I said "I'm so happy, I could die."
B                                    A        E
She said "Drop dead," then left with another guy.
A                                B            E
That's what you get if you go chasing after vengeance.
      Abm                                                B
Ever since you got me punctured this has been my sentence.
E                                          Abm
Oh I used to be disgusted, and now I try to be amused.
                E7
But since their wings have got rusted,
                A             B             E
you know, the angels wanna wear my red shoes.
                A                              E
But when they told me 'bout their side of the bargain,
              A                        E
that's when I knew that I could not refuse.
              B                        A             B             A       E
And I won't get any older, now the angels wanna wear my red shoes.
A                E                           A                        E
Red shoes, the angels want to wear my red shoes Red shoes, the angels want to
 wear my red shoes  (and so on)
