Here we go again it's Monday at last he's heading for the Waterloo line. To catch the

Bb G
8am fast that's usually dead on time.
Hope it isn't late.
Got to be there by 9.

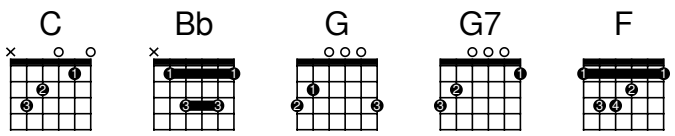

C
Pin-stripe suit, shirt and tie. Stops off at the corner shop to buy the Times.

Bb G
Good morning, Smithers-Jones.
How's the wife at home?
Did you get the car you've been looking for?

Bb G7
Did you get the car you've been looking for?

Bb G C F
Let me get inside you. Let me take control of you.

Bb. G (x3)
We could have some good times. Oh this world it will get you down.

I'll give you a new meaning to life.
I don't think so.

C
n.c.

C
Sitting on the train, you're nearly there.
You're a part of the production line. You're the

Bb G (x2)
Same as him. You're like tinned sardines.
Get out of the pack before they peel you back.

C
Arrive at the office, spot on time.
The clock on the wall hasn't yet struck 9.

Bb G (x3) Bb G7
Good morning, Smithers-Jones.
The boss wants to see you alone.
I hope it's the promotion you've been looking for.
I hope it's the promotion you've been looking for.

Bb G C F
Come in Smithers, old boy.
Take a seat, take the weight off your feet

Bb G (x2)
I've some news to tell you. There's no longer a position for you.
Sorry Smithers-Jones.

F C G C (x4)

F C G C
Put on the kettle and make some tea.
It's all a part of feeling groovy.
Put on your slippers, turn on the TV.
It's all a part of feeling groovy.
It's time to relax now you've worked your ass off.
But the only one smiling is the sun-tanned boss
Work and work and work and work 'til you die
'Cause there's plenty more fish in the sea to fry.

then just F C G C to end on C-G-C
